

2 | Conversation
4 | For the Record

The Brief

News from the U.S. and around the world

5 | The damaging opacity of Campaign 2016

8 | Ian Bremmer on how to stop North Korea

9 | Remembering conservative icon Phyllis Schlafly

10 | Muslim mothers join the fight against ISIS

12 | Inside Syria's cease-fire

14 | Admiral James Stavridis on the security and moral challenges of global migration

The View

Ideas, opinion, innovations

15 | Why we sing the national anthem at sports events

16 | Talking to strangers is good for you

17 | Now you can grow furniture

18 | Rana Foroohar on the for-profit schools fueling the student-debt crisis

19 | Joe Klein: Hillary Clinton's strategic error

The Features

Nuclear Threat

What's next after North Korea's biggest nuke test yet
By Charlie Campbell 20

Justice to Injustice

Despite the bloody carnage of his war on drugs, Philippine President Rodrigo Duterte remains defiant
By Rishi Iyengar 24

Seeing Red

A NASA simulation in Hawaii tests whether people have the headspace for life on Mars
By Jeffrey Kluger 28

The Joke Election

Late-night-TV comedians are more partisan than ever
By Richard Zoglin 32

A Harlem Superhero

The politics of Marvel's Luke Cage on Netflix
By Eliana Dockterman 38

Time Off

What to watch, read, see and do

41 | The new Blair Witch falls short of spooky

42 | Snowden and Bridget Jones's Baby

44 | Ann Patchett's new novel Commonwealth

45 | Lady Gaga's comeback single

47 | Susanna Schrobbsdorff rethinks religion

48 | 10 Questions for Librarian of Congress Carla Hayden

^ Kluger, TIME's space writer, watches a simulated Martian sunset on Hawaii's Mauna Loa on Sept. 1

Photograph by Cassandra Klos for TIME

ON THE COVER:
Photograph by Noel Celis—AFP/Getty Images