

TIME

THE NEW FACES OF THE RIGHT

A resurgence of nationalism has forced European politics to tilt sharply

By Simon Shuster

Norbert Hofer, left,
and Heinz-Christian
Strache of Austria's
Freedom Party at a rally on Sept. 10

6
8
0

4 | Conversation
6 | For the Record

The Brief

News from the U.S. and around the world

7 | What a spate of recent attacks tells us about U.S. terrorism readiness

8 | Superbugs under microscope

10 | China challenges Russia

12 | Refugee kids at the Calais Jungle race against time to reach Britain

14 | Police shootings in Tulsa and Charlotte

16 | The Wells Fargo scandal

The View

Ideas, opinion, innovations

19 | TV's inclusivity has further to go

20 | Rooting for more trees in cities

21 | The best way to inspire innovation

22 | The crisis over the lack of jobs for American men

23 | Joe Klein visits an Ohio city where Trump resonates in ways Clinton can't

42 | Donald Trump's spiritual adviser

The Features

Political Football

How NFL players are tackling race problems off the field on the field. Plus commentary from the Miami Dolphins' Jelani Jenkins, Princeton's Eddie S. Glaude Jr. and Columbia's John McWhorter
By Sean Gregory 30

Continental Shift

The rise of Austria's far-right presidential candidate speaks to the growth of right-wing populism throughout Europe
By Simon Shuster 24

Z Is for Zen

A school program experiments with mindfulness classes to help kids cope with anxiety
By Mandy Oaklander 38

Time Off

What to watch, read, see and do

43 | Inside the National Museum of African American History and Culture

46 | Classic western remake The Magnificent Seven; sitcom The Good Place

48 | The Book of Joy by Desmond Tutu and the Dalai Lama

50 | Classics make a comeback in luxury design

51 | Joel Stein releases his medical records

52 | 11 Questions for novelist Jennifer Weiner

Supporters of Austria's far-right Freedom Party at a rally in September

Photograph by Alexander Schwarzl—EPA

ON THE COVER: TIME photo-illustration. Photograph by Alexander Schwarzl—EPA/Redux